

Bio Summary for Thomas E. Brown, Ph.D.

Dr. Brown is a clinical psychologist who received his Ph.D. from Yale University and is Director of the Brown Clinic for Attention & Related Disorders in Hamden, Connecticut. He specializes in assessment and treatment of high-IQ children, adolescents and adults with ADD/ADHD and related problems. After serving on the clinical faculty of the Yale Medical School for 20 years, Dr. Brown has resigned to accept an appointment as Clinical Associate Professor of Psychiatry and Behavioral Sciences at the Keck School of Medicine of the University of Southern California. In May, 2017 he will relocate his clinic to Los Angeles, California.

Dr. Brown has served on the Professional Advisory Board for national CHADD and for the National Attention Deficit Disorder Association. He has published articles in professional journals and is author of the Brown Attention Deficit Disorder Scales for Children, Adolescents and Adults published by The Psychological Corporation/Pearson. He is editor of ADHD Comorbidities: Handbook for ADHD Complications in Children and Adults, a major text and reference work published by American Psychiatric Press. His award-winning Attention Deficit Disorder: The Unfocused Mind in Children and Adults was published by Yale University Press in 2005. His book, A New Understanding of ADHD in Children and Adults: Executive Function Impairments was released by Routledge in 2013. His most recent book, Smart but Stuck: Emotions in Teens and Adults with ADHD was published by Jossey-Bass/Wiley in March, 2014.